The Corman Central Administration for the Interior of the Russian Sens of Germany has been under close surveillance sizes its initiation, pending the possible emergence of a political police from within its ranks. The Reilway and Fater Folice Division of the CAI, as well as the Aligemeine Abtellung, have both been noted for isolated instances of personnel straying into the field of lew enforcement not germane to their assigned functions, and have subsequently been runared without definite confirmation to be serving as eover for political police functions.

With the issuance of Soviet Military Administration Directive No. 201 (Densification), the CAI was assigned the supervision of the implementation of the densification laws which that Directive promalgated for the eastern some of Germany, and was thereby provided a convenient opportunity, if such were intended, to create a political police branch within the CAI without letting it appear as such. The Directive instructs the German ministrative organs to see that within a period of three menths from its date, 16 August 1947, all former active Pascists and militarists are removed from all public and semi-public positions and from corresponding positions in all important private enterprises.
